HEARING ON WHARF EXTENSION CASE

City Council Hear Objectors and Then Fail to Take Action---To Plan for Central Fire Station.

There was a meeting of the Mayor and City Council on Wednesday evening, and the principal business was the consideration of the petition of the Southern Maine Steamship company, for the endorsement of the City Council in their petition to the War Department for right to extend their dock into the river twenty feet at one end.

The matter was before the Council at the last meeting and it was left then so that a view could be taken by the council, and this was done last Friday afternoon.

At the meeting Wednesday evening there were several new objectors to the plan heard. The first one was Hon. Henry A. Yeaton, the treasurer and manager of the Portsmouth Navigation company, who appeared in the interests of the tow boat business.

He said that he opposed the extension for the reason that it was an obstruction to navigation the reasons, said Mr. Yeaton, will be given by the tow boat men who were present. He said that only a few years ago the government expended a lot of money widening the river at that point by taking off the ledge across the river. He said that there was in every place harbor lines that were conformed to in building wharves and this had been followed in this city so that there was no break in the line from the railroad wharf to Spring Market, but now this company sought to destroy this line. He said that he could not see any reason for such an extension into the river. There was plenty of water for any ship that would be liable to come to that dock, in fact, for any craft to come alongside of the dock. In reply to questions of Col. Bartlett, he said that the towing business of the Navigation company would not be in any way interfered with by the building of the dock, as ninety-nine percent of their business was sailing vessels or barges.

Mr. Sturtevant, division train master of the Atlantic Shore Line, appeared in opposition to the extension on the ground that his company's landing would be materially affected. This was especially so when the ferry boat, Kittery was used for with the wharf built out and a vessel outside of that it would mean a dangerous proposition to handle that boat in the river. He said he allied to see how the new boat could bring in the business to this city, as much as his company which every year brought in and out 600,000 people. In answer to Col. Bartlett, he said that his company would not be affected by the competition as they did not do any freight business at this end of the line and at Cape Porpoise owned the only wharf and railroad to it.

Captain Hoyt of the tow boat M. Mitchell Davis, said that he wanted to see all the business come to this city everybody was interested in having it come, but he was opposed to extending the wharf out into the river

THIEF ENTERS RESIDENCE

Jewelry and Revolver Were Taken from the Home of Henry Campbell

The residence of Henry Campbell on Mulberry street was visited by thieves on Wednesday afternoon and today Mrs. Campbell is just one gold watch shy and her husband a valuable revolver.

The family live on the lower floor of the brick block and, during the afternoon, Mrs. Campbell stepped out, only for a few minutes to the home of her mother nearby, locking her apartments as she left.

On her arrival back she noticed some of the doors of the rooms open and began an investigation.

Her first thought was of her watch, which she left on the bureau of her chamber. The timepiece had disappeared, but the chain was left behind.

Looking over the bureau drawers she discovered that the revolver had been lifted from the back part, but nothing else was disturbed.

Two rings on the chamber bureau were not taken, and why the chain and the other jewelry did not go with the watch is hard to understand.

The thief either entered through a window of the cellar or the chamber. The police are at work on the case.

SAFER FOR THE MOTOR BOATS

Removing Some Old piling Under Noble's Island Bridge

Motor boat owners have made a complaint to the railroad of a lot of piling that for years has been in the river under the Noble's Island bridge, which they claim is more or less dangerous to navigation.

Following the complaint the railroad has sent a crew of workmen there, who are engaged in cutting down and taking out these sticks, which have been of no use one way or the other at this point.

ROOSEVELT TO REPRESENT THIS COUNTRY AT FUNERAL

Kaiser Gives Roosevelt High Honors
—Only Civilian Who Has Ever
Reviewed German Troops.

Washington, May 12.—President Taft Wednesday named former President Roosevelt as special ambassador to represent the United States at the funeral of the late King Edward VII. Colonel Roosevelt has accepted.

Ambassador Bryce and other officials of the British embassy will hold memorial services for the late King in St. John's Episcopal church on May 20.

President Taft, members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps and the House and Senate Foreign Relations committees will attend.

Sees Sham Battle as Kaiser's Guest.

Berlin, May 12.—Alarming reports concerning the condition of ex-President Roosevelt spread on Wednesday day after he had accompanied the Kaiser to a sham battle, in which 12,000 soldiers participated.

It is declared that Mr. Roosevelt was to undergo a thorough examination by three specialists immediately. Dr. Frankel, the specialist who is caring for the former president, refused to discuss the reports, merely stating that he had told Colonel Roosevelt that there was no reason why he should not attend the maneuvers. Mr. Roosevelt is suffering from acute laryngitis.

"Secret" Sham Battle.

Mr. Roosevelt in secret reviewed the crack regiments of Europe's war lord and judged a sham battle which eclipsed any pageant or entertainment previously arranged for him on his tour of Europe. At the direct command of the Emperor, every effort was made to prevent any but himself, his guest and the participants being present.

Signal honor was paid Mr. Roosevelt after the military review, when as the Kaiser led the party up Middelburg Hill, where there were assembled 300 officers he presented the guest thus: "My friend, Mr. Roosevelt, America's most distinguished citizen and the only civilian in the world who ever reviewed German troops. Hoch."

The emperor himself led the cheers that followed. The party returned to town in the afternoon. Mr. Roosevelt remaining at the embassy preparing for Ambassador Hill's dinner.

The maneuvers, which gave Mr. Roosevelt opportunity to compare Germany's finest fighters with those of France, who reviewed for him at Paris, was held at the Doebertz field. It was only after Mr. Roosevelt's throat had been examined by Professor Frankel, the specialist under whose care the ex-President has been placed while in Berlin, that the trip to the military field was undertaken. A good night's rest, it was announced had done much to improve his condition, and the visit to Doebertz was declared safe though the patient was

The affair was a benefit for the gratiation and judging from the large number present, the result will be encouraging to all who worked so hard for its success. It is a good cause and we trust the class reaped a benefit.

FOR BENEFIT OF Y.M.C.A.

A very pleasing double entertainment for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. was given at Association hall Wednesday evening, before an audience that taxed the capacity of the hall. The first production was entitled "The Joy Shop," and participated in by fourteen children all of whom did excellent work and showed careful training and much hard preparatory work.

The Highland dance was finely executed, also the Dutch dance by Miss Gwendolyn O'Brien was splendidly given and in a manner which displayed perfect ease in its execution. In fact, every number deserved much praise.

Although this little play was given at the North church chapel recently, last night's presentation was quite a little better, as it showed the results of much more practice. The stage was a veritable toy shop—being decorated with Teddy bears, dolls, rocking horses, and other playthings.

The second presentation was entitled "Out of Town" and as the first, given under the auspices of the Young People's society of the North Church, there were three acts and the cast Mr. Robert Mayhew Thorndike....

.....Miss Maud Trevelthen

Mr. John Spencer Elington, the unwilling possessor of a dukedom
.....Mr. Lawrence Wright
Mr. Harold Gardner as Mr. Thorndike certainly portrayed the part excellently and possessed a fine stage presence. His enunciation was very clear and his every manner that of a professional. All were good and the entertainment of a character to please everyone. It proved a success financially and was full of interest to the close. During the acts musical selections were given by Mrs. Hobbs, also several orchestra selections.

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE

Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

The nickel finish with the brilliant blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

as it would affect navigation. Now it was hard work to get out of the Lyman's wharf with a tug boat and with the wharf above extended it would be a serious matter. He said that he could not understand why they wanted to extend the wharf as there was plenty of water there now to dock any steamer that would ever come in the river. The extension would interfere with the towing for handling a vessel there was hard work now. He considered that to extend the Appledore wharf would seriously interfere with the wharf of Gray and Prime. In answer to a question of Mr. Bartlett, he said that in his opinion a 200 foot steamer could make a better landing there now than after the proposed improvements were made. He considered that if the wharf was straightened out it would be sufficient.

Captain Holt of the tug Piscataqua voiced the sentiment of Captain Hoyt.

Mr. Thomas E. Rider appeared as an objector, owing to the fact that his wharf would be boxed in.

Attorney John W. Kelley, who appeared for the Lyman wharf owners, said that the reason advanced at the last hearing for building the extension was to get away from the eddy, but this had been changed. He suggested that the wharves be straightened out, that is from the south end of the Jones wharf to the north end of Appledore wharf. He said that his client, John P. Lyman, had written to him stating that he opposed building out the wharf into the river, but if the council saw fit to grant it he wanted the same privilege and would ask for a permit to end his wharf a distance of 49 feet into the river to bring it in a straight line with the proposed extension of the Jones wharf.

Attorney J. H. Bartlett for the steamship company, said that all they wanted was for the council to endorse the petition. The company had already expended $10,000 and wanted now to extend the wharf a distance of twenty feet and it would cost about $6,000 and the contracts were already for signing. He said that the Ladd estate had withdrawn their objection, Consolidated Coal company and Gray & Prime did not offer any objections and the only objections were the Portsmouth Navigation company and the Lyman estate. He complained that to refuse to endorse the company would give the city a black eye.

The council took the petition under consideration and will give a decision next week.

A resolution was passed appointing the committee on city lands and buildings and the committee on fire department as a committee to investigate and report on the advisability of building a modern fire station on the site of the old court house and the present central fire station on Court street.

Councilman Stoddard raised an objection to the way the business on the city hall had been carried on. He said that he was a member of the committee, but had not been consulted on any matters pertaining to it.

The following petitions were acted upon:

Frank M. Amazeen was granted permission to enter his property on Seaside street with the sewer.

Ira C. Seymour was granted permission to erect a sign on Fleet street.

The petition of Frank L. Hersey and others asking for the replacing of the small light on Manning street was referred to the committee on lights to report.

The report of the Board of Public Works of the private property in which brown-tail and gypsy moths had been destroyed was received and a resolution authorizing the tax assessors to assess the cost against the property, was passed.

Councilman Smart reported favorably on the petition of A. B. Duncan and others for an incandescent light on Union street and A. J. Griffin, Jr., for a light on Hawthorne street. Adjourned for one week.

ATTENDED LAYMEN'S MEETING

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the New Hampshire Laymen's association at Dover on Wednesday evening, and several from this city attended.

PACT MASTERS' MEETING

There was a meeting of the past masters of the Masons at Dover on Wednesday evening, and this city was well represented.

AN EASY VICTORY.

How an Obstinate English Lord Was Outwitted in Naples.

Lord Charles Hamilton used to go about Naples attended by a large, ferocious bulldog. Having decided upon going to Rome, he proceeded to the station and took his place in a first class carriage, the "duwa," taking up a position on a seat opposite his master. The platform inspector, with many gesticulations, declared that the bulldog should not travel in a passenger carriage.

"Very well, then, take him out," was Lord Charles' rejoinder.

In vain the official expostulated. He merely reiterated his former reply, a piece of advice it is needless to say which was not followed, and Lord Charles, apparently master of the situation, threw himself back in his seat and calmly lit a cigar.

But the Italians were not to be outdone, and, quietly detaching the carriage in which the English "noble" was seated, they made up the train with another compartment and started it off.

Lord Charles sat quietly smoking for about a quarter of an hour and then surprised at the delay, thrust his head out of the window and demanded when the train was going to start. His feelings when the situation was described to him may be imagined.—London Tit-Bits.

An Obstructionist.

"He says poitnin' my shoes de same way de street runs 's de onlies' way for me to keep fum obstructin' de sidewalk."—Washington Star.

Scrapping the salary given to a first class buttermaker is like planting cheap seed corn at $1 a bushel when first class seed could be secured for from $3 to $6. We have known of creamery companies losing thousands of dollars by just such a policy as this "penny wise and pound foolish" kind.

A partition fence may prove a source of good will and neighborliness or enmity, depending upon whether the respective owners do or do not meet their obligations connected therewith. The same principle works out much the same with a number of other matters of everyday life which might be named.

Bride-to-Be Testified For Paymaster
When He Was Tried For Assaulting
Cowles at Naval Dance in Boston—
Had Previously "Indefinitely Postponed" Marriage to Atlanta Man at the Last Moment

Washington, May 12.—What many will regard as a fitting climax to a romance fraught with difficulties came when it was learned that Paymaster George P. Auld of the United States marine corps is to marry Miss Madeline Swift, daughter of Rear Admiral Swift, U. S. N., retired, next month.

Paymaster Auld was prominently before the public early in the year as a result of having knocked down Dr. E. S. Cowles, cousin of Rear Admiral Cowles, at a navy dance at Boston last December. It was alleged that Cowles had made insulting remarks about Miss May Hessler of Chicago, who was visiting naval circles in Boston. Miss Swift was a central figure at the trial by court-martial of Paymaster Auld and Passed Assistant Surgeon Robnett which followed as a result of the incident.

From the first it was believed that the attachment of Auld for Miss Swift had something to do with the quarrel between Auld and Cowles. Miss Swift had broken her engagement at the last moment to Harry D. Storer of Atlanta, who journeyed to Boston to marry her and found the wedding "indefinitely postponed."

Meanwhile close friends of Miss Swift said that Auld was indirectly responsible for Miss Swift's change of heart toward Storer, and rumors of an engagement of Auld and Miss Swift were current.

At the sensational trial of Auld and Robnett Miss Swift was an important witness for Auld. She testified to Cowles' attitude toward Miss Hessler and indicated that Miss Hessler had at least on one occasion been much embarrassed by Cowles' attentions.

After the trial, where Auld and Robnett escaped with slight punishment, it was known that Robnett and Miss Hessler were to be married.

The announcement of the coming wedding of Miss Swift completes the developments which were not altogether unexpected as a result of the navy yard quarrel which stirred navy and Back Bay circles of Boston to their depths.

BOGUS PASTOR JAILED

He Solicited Money For an Imaginary
Hospital For Children

Newton, Mass., May 12.—Albert H. Fish, accused of having swindled many Newton and Brookline residents out of sums of money by representing himself to be a clergyman collecting funds for a crippled children's hospital, pleaded guilty before Judge Kennedy and was given two months in the house of correction.

Fish begged the judge to be lenient, saying that he had a wife and five children in New York city, that he came here to get work and that because he could not he became desperate. At one time, he said, he studied for the ministry.

Attired as a clergyman, Fish found it an easy task to swindle many philanthropic wealthy society women.

San Jose, C. R., May 12.—Heavy earthquakes were felt here yesterday. Thousands of persons are leaving the city in alarm. While fear has seized a great part of the populace, the authorities continue resolutely at work among the ruins of Cartago. Many living persons have been rescued from the debris, some of whom will survive.

The dead are being buried as rapidly as possible at the direction of the health inspectors. Dynamite is being used to raze the buildings that are still standing. Congress had declared what amounts to martial law.

APPEAL OF "GOOD FELLOW"

Chorus Girl Who Tried to Die Wanted
No Press Notices

New York, May 12.—Physicians have succeeded in saving the life of Florence Heymann, 30 years old, of Sacramento, Cal., who drank two ounces of lysol in her room in the Hotel Wellington, after addressing a note to the newspapers asking them not to make "with an X" the spot where my body was found.

The woman was formerly a chorus girl. She became despondent over the fact that her husband, Otto H. Heymann of San Francisco, had obtained a divorce from her. It was on the ground of intemperance that her husband sued for divorce, and the wife did not defend the action. She came to this city immediately after the decision. Her letter "To the Press" says:

"Kindly give me only a local brevity. Don't put the 'X' where my body was found. I ask you to be kind in your writing. I have a mother and a brother out home. I don't want to inflict my unfortunate and upon them. Will you do as I ask? New York is vast and my home town is small. I reiterate, please make the closing number a local brevity. If you are good fellows you will do as a 'good fellow' asks."

the Fruit to Boston

Boston, May 12.—Granting one lemon to a glass of lemonade, which is a liberal basis, there are enough lemons stored at the Clyde street pier in East Boston to furnish about six glasses for every man, woman and child in Greater Boston. There were 19,000 boxes of lemons left there by the steamship Sanna, from the Mediterranean, and as they will average about 300 to the package, the total number of lemons is 5,000,000 in round figures.

Few large consignments of lemons have been landed at Boston from the Mediterranean in the last three years, and to supply the market further, the Romanic arrived with 5000 more boxes, which were landed at Charlestown.

ROOSEVELT SEES TROOPS IN ACTION

First Civilian to Review Soldiers of German Empire

Berlin, May 12.—Colonel Roosevelt, in the company of Emperor William, witnessed a mimic battle in which 12,000 men of the German military engaged in the vicinity of Doeritz. Roosevelt was provided with a superb thoroughbred from the imperial stables. The emperor also took a mount and together they rode over the maneuvering field of some twenty square miles and observed the working of the army problem.

The operations completed, the officers above the rank of major, who had taken part in the maneuvers, assembled to hear the criticisms of the emperor and the empress. When these comments had been made the emperor, in a loud voice, called out:

"My friend Roosevelt! I have been greatly pleased to show you some of our German troops. You are the first civilian who has reviewed our soldiers."

Parting salutations were then exchanged and the imperial party left in automobiles for Potsdam, while Roosevelt returned to this city.

Armstrong is charged with unlawfully and fraudulently signing a payroll on Dec. 1, 1909, "for the purpose of cheating and defrauding the city." He is also accused of unlawfully obtaining the signature of City Comptroller Morrow to certain warrants for the payment of the money.

REVISION TALK NOT APPROVED

Stand-Patters Do Not Share
Views of President

TANGLE OVER THE TARIFF

High Protectionists Unwilling to Admit That Present Law is Unsatisfactory—Fear That Business Would Be Disturbed by Tariff Board Plan
—Prospect of Congressional Contest
Over the Tariff Proposition

Washington, May 12.—The president has received notice from some of the leading stand-patters in congress that they cannot stand with him in his support of the provision of the sundry civil bill under which the present tariff board is to be continued, and instructed to make certain tariff investigations with a view to ultimately making changes in some of the schedules of the existing law.

Senator Aldrich and Representatives Payne and Dalzell discussed the proposed tariff board legislation with the president yesterday. Neither Aldrich nor Payne would talk of the conference. Dalzell said that no agreement had been reached with reference to the legislation. "It is still up in the air," was the way he put it. All Aldrich would say was that if congress took any action which would leave the impression that there is to be another tariff revision within a few years business would be disturbed.

After the emissaries of high protection left the president's office, Chairman Tawney of the committee on appropriations, the author of the tariff board provision, arrived for a talk with the president. He found the chief executive determined to make a firm stand for the proposed legislation.

Mr. Tawney believes that the tariff agitation now so acute in various sections of the country can be eased if congress will give him authority to have the existing tariff board, or a tariff commission make a thorough study of the existing schedules. He indicated in his talk with Tawney that he will make the best fight he knows how to make for this authorization.

The ultra protectionists like Dalzell and Payne are opposed to the proposed legislation because, as they assert, it will amount to an admission that there is something wrong with the present tariff law. They want to go before the country and defend the law as perfect, or as nearly perfect as it is possible to make tariff legislation. Privately they are expressing a good deal of disgust over the attitude of the president. They had expected him to continue to stand up and defend the tariff law as all right in every particular.

The situation as a whole with reference to the proposed tariff investigation is complicated. If the ultra protectionists in the house refuse to yield to the president, one of their number will make a point of order against the tariff board revision carried in the sundry civil bill. If the proposed legislation should go out on the ground that it is new legislation, the chairman of the committee on appropriations would have to ask the committee on rules for a special rule under which to pass the provision.

The Democrats are inclined to be against the proposed legislation because provision is not made for reporting to congress the information gathered. If the minority members of the committee on rules should vote against a special rule, and the stand-patter members of that committee should vote with them, a rule would be impossible, and the provision would go out of the bill. Tawney is not at all optimistic over the outlook for his provision, notwithstanding the support the president is giving him.

It is evident that a contest is coming on over what shall be done with reference to the tariff law. One of the elder senators says that it will probably develop into a conflict that will overshadow any other contest of this session of congress.

Following a series of conferences, it is announced that according to present plans the insurgents will first of all press for a genuine tariff commission measure in place of the Tawney provision in the sundry civil appropriation bill in which the powers and duties of the tariff board are defined, and that falling in this they will seek to amend the provision on the floor at specified points.

THE PAPERMAKERS' STRIKE

Company Tells Why It Will Not Deal
With Heads of Unions

Glens Falls, N. Y., May 12.—The International Paper company has issued a long document setting forth its side in the strike investigation being conducted by the state board of arbitration.

It holds that the men have no cause for a strike and that the reason why the company will not confer with J. T. Carey, president of the Papermakers' union, is that in 1908 Carey signed an agreement calling off the strike and a few months later repudiated the agreement, and that, as John H. Mallin of the Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers' union has joined the Carey forces, it is impossible to treat with him.

The company continues to import strike-breaking help in its various mills.

Danbury, Conn., May 12.—An agreement has been reached by the manufacturers and the unions engaged in the hating industry in this city, which provides for arbitration of all disputes between the two organizations in the trade.

The plan provides for the appointment of three arbitrators by each side, whenever any matter requiring arbitration shall arise. If these six are unable to come to an agreement within five days from the time the question is submitted to them, they are to endeavor to agree upon a seventh person to act as referee, and failing in this after five days the appointment of the seventh person is to be asked for at the hands of the president of the National Civic association.

Gelineas was at work in the cutting room at the shoe factory of Bray & Shilley, standing at his bench, when he commenced to jump and shout, and his fellow-cutters became alarmed, thinking that he had gone crazy. After they fled from the room they learned the cause of his actions.

LAUNCHED AT BROOKLYN

Highest Naval Officers and Many Others of Prominence Attend Function
Which is Witnessed by Fifty Thousand People—Miss Fleming of Florida Acts as Sponsor—Firing of Cannon Loaded With Cigars a Feature

New York, May 12.—Fifty thousand persons witnessed the launching of the Florida, the new Dreadnought of the American navy, this morning at the Brooklyn navy yard, with Miss Elizabeth L. Fleming, daughter of a former governor of Florida, as the sponsor.

At Miss Fleming's side were Secretary of the Navy Meyer, Assistant Secretary Winthrop, Albert W. Gilchrist, Governor of Florida, and his staff; Admirals Evans, Sperry, Schroeder, Walworth, Potter and Leutzel, the latter commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard.

As the big fighting craft slid gracefully down the greased ways, stern first, Miss Fleming broke the bottle against the steel plates and said: "I name thee Florida."

T. M. Wier, who is a member of the party of Governor Gilchrist, and who was the official representative of the Tampa board of Trade at the launching, brought with him the first cannon that was mounted on the new Dreadnought.

When the lanyard of this gilded weapon was pulled a volley of cigars was fired. The cannon, which is Wier's own invention, is about a yard long, and was crammed to the muzzle with the finest cigars that Wier's extensive tobacco plantation could produce, and which were themselves shaped like miniature cannon.

The battleship is 65 percent completed and was built in the Brooklyn navy yard. She weighs a little more than 9000 tons, which is about 1000 tons more than her sister ship, the Utah.

Among those who witnessed the launching were many government officials from Washington. In addition to a great throng from this city.

Several stands for viewing the launching of the huge Dreadnought were erected independent of the battleship's framework. These stands accommodated several thousands of people.

The Florida is twenty-one feet longer and her tonnage will be 3500 tons greater than the great battleship Helderophon of the British navy.

The full length of the Florida is 521 feet. Her displacement will be 21,525 tons, and she is expected to develop 28,000 horsepower, and to attain a speed of twenty-one knots an hour.

GREET'S NEW KING

Parliament Adopts Addresses of Condolence and Congratulations

London, May 12.—Parliament met to pay a national tribute to the memory of King Edward and to welcome his successor, King George. A message from the new monarch, in which he announced the death of his father and his own succession, was read in both houses, which subsequently adopted addresses of condolence and congratulations to the king.

Speeches were made in parliament by the leaders of the political parties. The royal message was received in the house of commons with solemnity, the members standing uncovered as it was read.

While he was speaking Premier Asquith was obviously deeply affected. When he expressed the sympathy which the house felt for the queen-mother, he all but broke down.

Speaking along similar lines in the house of lords, the Earl of Crewe was well-nigh overcome with emotion and concluded his remarks only with difficulty.

HIBBARD IS TURNED DOWN

Appointment as City Collector of Boston Is Not Approved

Boston, May 12.—George A. Hibbard, ex-postmaster and ex-mayor of the city of Boston, former lieutenant and intimate friend of Senator Lodge, has been "turned down" ignominiously for a minor city appointment by the Massachusetts civil service commission.

The man who once received 38,104 votes for the chief magistracy of this city has been declared unqualified to fill the position of city collector, to which Mayor Fitzgerald appointed him. The civil service commission has refused to say the word which would give him a new start in life, politically.

Mayor Fitzgerald is now helpless to aid his former rival and one-time conqueror further. Heartbroken and stunned by the blow, the ex-mayor refused himself to all callers and could find no words to express his opinion of the situation.

AERONAUTS' GREAT FALL FROM CLOUDS

Narrowly Escape Death After Thrilling Sea Voyage

Center, Ky., May 12.—Numbed by a snowstorm encountered at an altitude of 26,000 feet, and dropped rapidly to earth from a considerable height because of inability to control the balloon, A. H. Forbes of Bridgeport, Conn., vice president of the Aero Club of America, and J. C. Yates of New York, suffered severe injuries after a flight of 400 miles from Quincy, Ills.

Their balloon, the Viking, descended with such precipitation that both aeronauts were bruised and stunned and the balloon was wrecked.

The balloon came to earth near here and dropped through the final 100 feet of space like a stone. The balloonists are suffering from severe bruises and sprains, but they are not seriously injured. Although confined to their beds, they expect to be able to travel within two or three days.

EVENING DRESS ALLOWED

Catholic Women May Keep Their Scapulars "Wherever They Please"

Milwaukee, May 12.—Archbishop Messmer of Milwaukee will issue a circular to priests in which he will permit women of the church that the pope has issued a special edict, which will make it possible for them to wear evening decolette gowns or peek-a-boos waists.

The edict permits women of the church to carry their scapulars in their pockets, or "wherever they please," the reason for the edict being to permit women to dress as the customs of society dictate.

Hitherto it has been impossible for Catholic women who wear the scapular to don evening clothes, for the scapular is not designed as artistic and would not harmonize with the ordinary decolette corsage.

RAISE 'EM IN AMERICA

The news dispatches in the last few days have contained stories of the bringing of thousands upon thousands of young forest trees—mostly spruce and pine—from European nurseries for planting in the United States. One such lot was loaded with infestations of gipsy and brown-tail moths and the trees were intended for distribution in twenty different states.

We are all familiar with the agent for the tree nurseries who is sure to visit us at least once a year and to do his best to persuade us to buy some apple or peach trees, and who will readily divulge information about the merits of wigwags and climbing roses and white lilacs and purple hydrangeas and arbor vitae hedges and weeping maples, etc., but it comes as a shock to learn that the stock in so many instances is imported from abroad.

Can't the tree and shrubbery nurseries of America fill the needs of the American trade? It would seem not, and so seeming, the question is started whether the American nursery business does not offer tempting opportunities for the venturesome business man.

Why not try it in New Hampshire? The natural wild forests, hundreds of orchards, and many other instances, like the famous rose farm at Madbury prove that New Hampshire soils and climate are suitable.

Who will grasp the opportunity of getting that foreign nursery business into America?

BIRDBEYE VIEWS

Another step in the direction of a safe and sane Fourth was taken by the Massachusetts senate Tuesday afternoon. Only one vote was recorded against it. Twenty-four other members voted to advance to a third reading the bill to prohibit the sale of revolvers and blank cartridges and all the other devices carrying the potentialities of disaster as well as noise. Portsmouth better join the procession.

While the milk controversy continues in Boston the consumers are wondering what the result will be, but one thing quite certain is, that when the strike and all the discussion shall have ended, the price of milk will have been advanced. The consumer has to stand the brunt of all these battles. The producer usually can't and the middleman can't or won't.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Beautify the Cemeteries

We notice that the cemetery authorities of our city are making a commendable effort to clean up and beautify the local cemeteries as the day approaches for honoring our departed heroes of the various wars. The men who risked their lives for the flag deserve all the honors we can pay them on Memorial day, but there are others equally deserving of honor. Thousands of those who remained at home made heroic sacrifices that entitled them to lasting memorials. The women who sent their sons, their husbands and their brothers to the front, had to bear untold privations, yet they murmured not, but like Spartan mothers urged their nearest and dearest to fight and if necessary die for country and home. Then apart from those who served in the war or who had friends serve there, we should remember the graves of relatives whose memory we hold sacred. Why not see that their graves are trimmed of grass and made to indicate that the departed ones whose remains are there interred are not entirely forgotten. Therefore, we join the cemetery trustees, and that friend of cemetery beautification, Charles L. Knapp, in appealing to all to clean up the cemeteries to beautify the graves and at least on Memorial day to let no grave be without some token of remembrance.—Lowell Sun.

Uncle Sam's Naval Lottery.

The United States government, through an authorized agent, has embarked in a lottery scheme to fill the ranks of the navy. That's the interpretation which will be put upon the circular letter prepared by the chief of the naval recruiting department and published broadcast in the newspapers. The bait put before young men is substantially that thousands who now enlist will be given a sea trip to foreign waters, and "Why shouldn't you be one of them?" The prize will be drawn, and the only way to get a chance is to enlist in the navy.

It is a tempting offer, and probably those who draw lucky will never regret it. As the trips to foreign waters are scheduled for every year, there ought to be but few blanks. But the government may get blanks without number. The man who enlists for a junket will be likely to think of that and nothing else. Duties will be irksome, and they will be given "a lick and a promise" in most cases. Men who hold back until prizes are offered rarely possess the stuff for discipline and fighting. The service needs men who are willing to serve on shipboard and take things as they come.

It is an excellent thing for republican institutions that such a man as Charles E. Hughes should proceed from the executive chair to the supreme bench to administer justice for the rest of his life in the same conscientious, dispassionate manner in which he has administered his duties as governor of the Empire State.

American Girl Art and Vocal Students' Club In Paris

In an effort to stem the tide of monotony which exists after study periods the American girls attending art academies and vocal institutions in Paris have banded together and organized a club on a strictly American basis. The leaders of the idea have seen to it that nothing was left undone to make the members comfortable in every way possible. The fair students gather at the club after class time and take tea, after which they may exercise in the gym, take a plunge in a large swimming pool, bowl, lounge in the spacious reading rooms, join a theater party, for, as a rule, there is always one formed, or go to the dormitories and talk of things at home with their roommates.

FIFTY-SIX YEARS AGO TODAY

Steeple of Old North church Was Pulled Down

can't come down, I can't come down
Call loudly as you may!
A century and a third, I've stood,
And another I may stay.

so long I've watched the changing scene,
As every point I've faced,
And witnessed generations rise,
Which others have displaced.

That this small boon I now must crave,
The peltings I'll not scorn,
Ill, coward like I turn my head,
Let me still face the storm.

be points which now above me rise
Have branched since I perched here or Franklin then was but a boy,
Who gave the lightning gear.

The day when Cook exploring sailed
I faced the eastern breeze;
Stationed at home I turned my head
To the far western seas.

I've stood while isles of savage men
Grew harmless as the dove,
And spears and battle axes turned
To purposes of love.

I looked on when those noble clms
Upon my east first sprang,
And heard where now a factory stands
The ship yard's busy hum.

When tumult filled the anxious throng
I looked on every side,
The constant breeze still fanned a flame
And Freedom's fire supplied.

William and Mary's fort I've oft
Through storms kept fall in view
Queen's chapel in the snow swirls faced
Zephyrs through King street drew.

But Constitution now takes place
To meet my southeast glance,
The shrill northeasters from St. John's
Up Congress street advance.

In peace, I once felt truly vain,
For 'neath my shadow stood
The man whom all the people loved,
George Washington, the good!

"I've seen, oh! may I ne'er again!
The flames thrice round me spread
And hundreds of familiar homes
Turned to a light ash bed."

But why recount the sights I've seen?
You'll say I'm getting old;
"I'll quit my tale, long though it be,
And leave it half untold."

The fame of Rogers, Fitch and Stillis,
And Buckminster, all true,
And later men, whom all do know,
Come passing in review.

Their sainted souls, and hearers now

Your fathers, where are they?
The temple of their love still stands,
Its memories cheer your way.

Till that old oak among whose boughs
The sun my first shade cast,
Lays low in dust, his vigorous form,
A respite I may ask.

I can't come down, I can't come down,
Call loudly as you may,
A century and a third I've stood,
And another I must stay!

This tribute, to the vane on the old North church, written in April, 1854, by a beloved son of Portsmouth, Benjamin P. Shillaber, preceded the demolition of the North church edifice, the steeple of which was pulled down on May 12th, 1854.

Market square was the scene of a large gathering of old and young, who had come out to see the very unusual sight of a church steeple falling to the ground. The affair had been the talk of the town for many days before, and a slight snow, was not to be missed. Many left the dinner table with the noonday meal ignored, or half eaten as it had been noised abroad that the old steeple would be pulled over at the noon hour.

Mr. A. K. P. Deering, a noted rigger from the South end and his assistant, Mr. Campbell, were busy in the bell tower, cutting away the corner posts at quarter of one o'clock, and announced that all was ready for the pull. All eyes were turned upward as the steeple swayed to and fro, but refused to come down. Messrs. Deering and Campbell returned to the tower and piled the axes again, while the men and boys and oxen tugged at the rope that was leading down Market street. The steeple, as it overcame in its old age by a superior force, tottered on its legs and its knees bent. At 5 minutes past one o'clock an increased crashing of posts was heard and the vane and steeple came down in a heap, amid clouds of dust, and flying splinters. Shouts went up, both of joy and sorrow, and the writer looked at the strange sight of the church without a steeple. A few minutes later he had secured a relic that encircled one of the balls of wood, just below the top of the steeple. Many souvenirs were thus taken away by the interested crowd.

The town clock dial, and the silvery tones of the bell, which had not rested on the ground for eighty years, were greatly missed. The new church edifice on Market square soon supplied the missing requirement.

Relative to the vane of which poet Shillaber so feelingly wrote, it may be of interest to say that it was placed upon the steeple of the old church in 1732, twenty years after the building was erected and bore the date mentioned.

It was not gilded until 1798. It was a useful indicator of the wind and weather for over a century, and the tribute paid to it was well bestowed by one of Portsmouth's favorite sons. Did it ever occur to you that the vane on the North church is made a study most frequently in these latter days by those interested in the probabilities of fair or foul weather, and is of much account in planning schemes for the day, or tomorrow.

It tells the story generally with accuracy to those who study its indications.

HE FIXED THE DEED.

A Judge Who Had Small Regard For Legal Quibbles.

Theophilus Harrington, a Vermont judge in the early part of the last century, was a man who loved the right and cared little for mere legal quibbling. "If justice controls your verdict," he would often say to the jury, "you will not miss the general principles of the law."

At one trial when the possession of a farm was in question the defendant offered a deed of the premises, to which the plaintiff's lawyer, Daniel Chipman, objected because it had no seal.

"But your client sold the land, was paid for it and signed the deed, did he not?" asked the judge.

"That makes no difference," said Chipman. "The deed has no seal and cannot be admitted in evidence."

"Is there anything else the matter with the deed?" asked the judge.

"I don't know that there is."

"Mr. Clerk," said the judge, "give me a wafer and a three cornered piece of paper."

The clerk obeyed, and the judge deliberately made and affixed the seal.

"There, Brother Chipman," said he, "the deed is all right now. It may be put in evidence. A man is not going to be cheated out of his farm in this court when there is a whole box of wafers on the clerk's desk."

"The court will give me an exception?" pleaded the counsel.

"The court will do no such thing," answered the judge, and he kept his word.—Exchange.

Up to Date Milking Scene.

"What's going on around here?" asked the surprised visitor. "Is this a hospital?"

"Oh, no," assured the tall man in the silk hat; "this is the stage setting for a New England farm drama. The next act will be the milking scene."

"But I thought the young lady in the antiseptic apron was a 'trained nurse'?"

"Oh, no; she is the milkmaid. The young man in the rubber gloves that you thought was a doctor is the farm boy. As soon as they bring in the sterilized stool and the cow's toothbrush the milking scene will begin."—Chicago News.

Well Satisfied.

"Old Grabber ought to be satisfied with the money he has."

"He is satisfied—so much so that he wants a lot more of exactly the same kind."—London Tit-Bits.

Already Done.

Pa—But, young man, do you think you can make my girl happy? Suitor—Do I? Say, I wish you could 'n' seen her when I proposed.—Cleveland Leader.

Electric Sign advertising is no longer an experiment. The most successful firms of world-wide reputation as well as the stores with whom we have done business give us facts that prove the advertising worth of Electric Signs to be far in excess of any method of advertising that has ever been devised for the amount expended.

Look for the most enterprising city of today and you will find one that uses Electric Signs on all available locations and where merchants appreciate the advertising value and use light. I am making and selling the best signs that can be produced, not the cheapest, but signs that will stand up and give service for years. Recent inventions have reduced the cost and also the cost of maintaining. Public spirit and civic pride demand well lighted business sections in our cities, why not do your part with a well lighted, artistic Electric Sign and increase your business as well.

I charge nothing for estimates or sketches and am always willing to explain details and serve your interests. Respectfully yours,

PLANS FOR TWO NEW SHIPS

Washington, May 12.—The naval general board has before it the tentative designs of the new battleships, the construction of two of which Congress will authorize at the present session. Secrecy about the plans has been strictly ordered.

The new ships will be 1000 tons greater displacement than the Arkansas and the Wyoming, which are of 26,000 tons, and it is proposed to use this increased displacement in adding to the armament and so increasing what may be called the hitting power of the new ships. There will be at least 10 14-inch, instead of 12 12-inch guns, which is the armament of the battleships authorized last year. Ten 14-inch guns are regarded as better than 12 12-inch guns. It is desired to increase the hitting power of the new ships, and maintain the speed and, if possible, increase the endurance. The latter feature is brought about by increased capacity for the storage of coal. The new ships will embrace the best features in connection and in a military way. They will have more destructive batteries and will be able to keep the sea longer than any battleship under construction.

NEW CASTLE

A Very Pleasant Celebration of a Birthday

Another Summer Cottage Has Been Opened

New Castle, May 12.

The weather for the past two days has been ideal. The grass has begun to grow on the lawn and the odor of new mown hay adds to the attractiveness of this always beautiful place, doubly beautiful in the springtime with its blooming orchards, its delightful view of woods, creeks and broad Atlantic ocean.

The attractive residence of Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey King on Main street was the scene of a most delightful gathering on Tuesday evening, when a merry party of their intimate friends paid a surprise visit to properly celebrate the natal anniversary of Mr. King's birth. They were most hospitably received by this most estimable couple, who proceeded to entertain them in their own inimitable way. A splendid supper was served in the dining room, being most tastefully decorated in the sweetest of spring flowers and the following plethora of good things were partaken of with avidity:

Tomato Soup
Roast Chicken Mashed Potatoes
Sliced Tomatoes Peas
Lobster Salad
Crushed Strawberries Whipped Cream
Assorted Cake
Crackers Cheese
Coffee

After which was the pleasing diversion and the fascination of the pleasant pastime was enjoyed until a late hour. Mr. and Mrs. King did everything possible to entertain their friends and their efforts were much appreciated. They will always recall with greatest pleasure this delightful anniversary and the good wishes of Mr. King's host of friends are that he may enjoy many more such delightful returns of the day.

Hon. J. W. Flint of Andover, with a party of male friends, including ex-Speaker Cole of the house of representatives, passed Wednesday at his summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey White of Farmington are passing the week at the old homestead.

Mr. Frank Roberts of Boston has arrived and opened his cottage.

Messrs. Robinson and White are painting the White cottage.

Miss Clyde Flanders has arrived home from the Cottage Hospital where she has been under treatment for a number of weeks.

Mr. Webster G. White is substituting at the Salisbury life saving station.

The Ladies Industrial society gave Miss Theresa W. White a delightful surprise at her home on Atkinson street, Tuesday evening, and a most enjoyable evening was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Evelyn S. White is passing the day in Lawrence.

There was a man in our town who was wonderfully wise, or at least thought he was, whose name I will withhold because I think it might be more healthy for me to do so, who passed the most sleepless nights for years, owing to his undue wisdom in some directions. His wife, being built on the timid plan, suggested a number of days ago that it was time to hold out the screens, but her lord assured her that we were a thousand miles from mosquito invasions, but last night he met his Waterloo when the buzzing angels sailed in with (Mr. Pinafore be allowed) their sisters and their cousins, and their aunts. He was bitten as many times as Heinz has varieties on the market, after exhausting all his vocabulary of strong adjectives he swore by the big horn spoon that if he lived until morning he would adjust those screens before he had breakfast and that he was assured that in a normal spring it was never too early for the screech bunch to be happening around.

RYE

Rye, May 12.

The entertainment and dance given last evening at Rye Town hall under the auspices of Rye Grange was a decided success and brought out a large and enthusiastic audience. The drama "A Black Heifer," one of the most humorous plays seen in the hall for a long time and full of funny situations from beginning to end, was given. Each individual part was ably taken by the following cast of characters: Eph Cincobax, of Swampscott Hotel Walter G. Marston

Carleton du Ruyter, of Ruyter's gallery fame Willmot M. Smart
George Cincobax, Eph's son Willard Drake
White Smith, a arm hand who gutters Percy Moulton
Weary Wrangles, a tramp Chester Drake
Detective Holscombe, of Byrne's force, New York Chester Drake
Squar Brown, of Swampscott Village Arthur C. Walker
Rube Miller, Town Constable of Swampscott Newell P. Marden
Fiddler Chester Drake
Mrs. Arabella Simkins, a fascinating widow who is dear Lizzie B. Seavey
Betsy Brown, a simple country maiden Jennie C. Drake
Scraps, a wail from New York Alice Squire

There certainly was something doing every minute. The specialties introduced were exceptionally good and fine rendered. Excellent music was furnished by Wentworth and Marden of Portsmouth. Supper was served consisting of ice cream, assorted cake and coffee, after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. The dining room was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Horton D. Marden. The committee in charge of all arrangements were Willmot M. Smart, Arthur C. Walker, Mrs. Everett Seavey, Miss Ardelie Marston and Willard Trefethen.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hanscom have returned home after spending several days in New Castle, the guests of relatives.

Miss Charlotte Bickford of Kittery was the guest of Miss Dona Walker on Wednesday.

What came near being a serious fire was narrowly averted at the residence of Mr. Charles Drake of West Rye on Wednesday afternoon. The fire was started by sparks from the chimney and it was only by very strenuous work by those who responded to the call that the fire was extinguished with slight loss. In addition to the water used, Mr. Drake poured fifteen pails of milk onto the blaze which seemed to have more effect than the water.

The regular meeting of Rye Grange will be held in the Town hall Friday evening, and the following program given:

Piano solo Mabel Small
Discussion "The Present Crisis in the Milk Business," Mr. J. D. Marston, Mr. Fred Parsons, Mr. Wallace Goss, will open the discussion, followed by others.

Reading Grange
Singing Grange
At this meeting the first and second degrees will be worked on a class of candidates.

Mr. Francis Drake and family of Rye Beach will sail on May 18 for a tour of several months in Europe.

88 NOTE INVERTED GRAND SYMPHONY PLAYER PIANO

In offering our 88 note Inverted Grand Symphony Player Piano to the public, we wish it to be understood that we have embodied therein everything that has proven advantageous in automatic playing mechanism beyond the experimental stage. In no automatic playing Piano with so few controllers, has the performer such absolute control over the pneumatics as in this instrument, hence a mere child will readily be able to comprehend its mechanism and can obtain the best results.

No composition has ever been written for the Pianoforte which cannot be interpreted in such a way that it would be impossible to detect the mechanical from the human touch. Special attention has also been paid to the pumping apparatus.

Heretofore the operator became exhausted before the completion of a selection, but in this instrument, little or no effort is required even on the longest composition. The instrument must be seen and tried to be appreciated.

DOING AWAY WITH TOWN WASTE

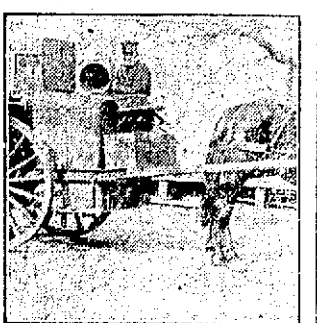

Methods For Removing and Disposing of Garbage.

TWO VALUABLE SYSTEMS.

Contract and Municipal Plans Equally Favored in Many Parts of the United States—Gratification of Public Opinions a Good Means of Improvement—Improved Collection Carts.

Progressive citizens of many towns are giving their attention to the means of disposing of the town's waste and the best possible method of accumulating it. At present there are two ways of removing garbage and disposing of it. The first is by the contract system. A great number of towns prefer to have the collection made through the agency of a single contractor. A town will offer for competition a contract for one year or longer, awarding it to the lowest bidder and attempting to guard against every opportunity for neglect, delay or faulty equipment.

When under the strict observation of faithful and zealous inspectors this system can be made satisfactory and efficient. But in some cases there has grown up an abuse of the custom by which contractors combine to divide the territory and to raise the price of the service to a point beyond the legitimate cost.

UP TO DATE GARBAGE CART.
(From American City, New York.)

There is also the danger of political control of many voters by a large contractor, who thereby becomes the proprietor of a political machine through which he is able to continue his possession of the contract. Yet the contract system is that which is most generally in use, and it may be said to be the typical American way of dealing with refuse collection and disposal.

The second is the municipal system. Towns having become dissatisfied with the first method have established their own collective systems and in most cases have also erected their own disposal plants. It is true that the municipal system has been burdened in some cases with inefficient superior tenders or with employees who were time servers without desire to give faithful work and whose places were obtained through political influence. The great advantage to be gained by the municipal system is that the responsibility for good or bad service is centered directly upon the heads of departments.

Each employee is held accountable by the public for the faithful performance of his work. When streets are left dirty and garbage is not collected, when ashes are not removed and waste paper is blowing about the streets, these facts show for themselves and sound louder than any complaint that may be voiced through the newspapers.

There is still another side to this matter that is important and has to be taken up. No prospective citizen who sees the outskirts of any community ringed by garbage dumps, clouds of ill-smelling smoke and flying paper from which cover the surrounding country, can be predisposed in favor of a place that is indifferent to such visible nuisances.

Civic associations and the women's improvement leagues can hardly do a better field for their labors than the abatement of nuisances of this sort. Many improvements have been made in the equipment used in the collection service. Only a short time ago steel wagons replaced the old wooden carts, and there is still more room for improvement. Garbage carts do not add to the beauty of any street, but they can be made less objectionable by the use of an improved model.

The example of improved collection wagon shown in the illustration presents an unobtrusiveness and neatness which are most desirable and which tend to remove the impression of disgust hitherto inseparable from the mental picture of a garbage cart. The whole subject of civic cleanliness as related to the sanitary treatment and disposal of municipal waste is part of or an adjunct to the curriculum in some of the leading engineering schools.

Keep Town Hall Attractive. There is hardly a town of 1,000 inhabitants in the land but has its town hall or courthouse, and usually it is an eyesore to all for the want of improvement. If the men of the town would turn out for half a day with spades and rakes and the women with seeds and plants the square could be made a park for all to be proud of.

THE CASE FOR HOME TRADE

Easy to See How Money Spent at Home Helps Yourself.

Let's sit down for a minute, friend, and talk over this matter of buying goods that you don't see and feel, for which you send your money a thousand miles or more. Let's suppose, just for the sake of the argument, that when you get it you aren't satisfied, what then?

Well, I hear you say, "They promise to take it back and give me back my money." Suppose they do promise, is there any certainty that they will send your money back when you want it immediately or send all of it back? And isn't your time worth more to you than tritling it away in correspondence with a house so far away that if its reply isn't satisfactory you can't pack your hand grip and go and get your money personally?

Perhaps you say, "I can't get what I want in my home town." That may be so, but have you really tried? It may be worth your while to go a little out of your way and do your tritling at home. If Smith on the street near you hasn't got what you want, perhaps Brown, two squares away, has it, or Robinson, a quarter of a mile away from your home. At any rate, it takes less time to try to get the things you want at home than it does to write for them and wait for them to come from some city far away, doesn't it?

I think I hear you say, "The prices at home are higher than in the big cities." Are you quite sure that, quality for quality, the prices are higher? And even if they are slightly higher it is worth something to you to buy at home and not spend your time waiting for goods and waiting for them. Perhaps if you and your friends who send so much money away from home to the houses far away were to patronize your neighbor he could afford to put in a better and more varied stock and thus give you more and better goods for your money.

Then there are the other advantages of buying at home—the helping of your neighbor who is struggling hard to support himself and his family, the helping to build up your home town by keeping your money at home and the return to yourself of part at least of the money you spend at home. Think it over, friend!

A TIP FOR IMPROVERS.

How a Wisconsin Town Profited by a Successful Betterment Campaign. Many rural communities would profit by heeding the tip that is given them in the way the citizens resurrected Tomah, Wis. It started its work with the sensible step of making a general study of conditions so as to know what things needed to be done, their relative importance, the obvious order of their accomplishment and similarly useful points.

The question of paving and boulevarding the main street appealed to some strongly, and a campaign in that direction has come to a successful termination. The street is a very wide one, and it has been paved with brick on both sides, and a parking area through the center has been developed with lawns and shrubs.

AN IDEAL PIECE OF PARKING.
(From American City, New York.)

The work was in the meantime extended to the school and library grounds, where flowers, shrubs and lawns were called upon to do their respective parts. This all led to a greater interest in home grounds and a desire for suggestions as to how to develop these successfully. A landscape architect was called in to help, and he spent several days going over the home grounds and making suggestions as to the best methods of development.

One of the results was that two carloads of shrubs were ordered, and it is an easy inference that they were used to good purpose.

A Fine For Whitewashing Trees. City Forester J. H. Prost of Spokane, Wash., is beginning a campaign against the practice of whitewashing tree trunks in the parkways along the residence streets of the city. He calls attention to an existing ordinance making this practice punishable by a fine of from $5 to $100.

"This practice is worse than useless," Mr. Prost said. "It is unsightly, offensive to the eye, disfigures the appearance of the streets and plasters up the breathing pores of the trees."

Clean Town Grows. It will cost the average town about $25 to paint its public hitching posts and telegraph and telephone poles, but the difference it will make in the looks of the place is worth ten times that amount. A clean, tidy town is always a good business town, and property is always in demand at full value, and it grows accordingly.

Benjamin Franklin Idea. If a man can do business he should let it be known—Franklin.

ROYALTY GATHERING FOR KING'S FUNERAL

London, May 12.—The kin of the British royal family are arriving here to attend the funeral of King Edward. Empress Dowager Marie of Russia, a sister of Queen Mother Alexandra, arrived Wednesday, accompanied by Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, younger brother of Emperor Nicholas who will be the official representative of the Russian government at the obsequies.

The Empress Dowager and the grand duke were met at the railroad station by King George and Queen Mary, who drove with them to Buckingham Palace.

Parliament met late yesterday to pay a national tribute to the memory of King Edward and to welcome his successor, King George.

A message from the new monarch, in which he announced the death of his father and his own succession was read in both houses, which subsequently adopted addresses of condolence and congratulations to the King.

Royal Message to House of Commons. Speeches were made in parliament by the leaders of the political parties. The royal message was received in the house of commons with solemnity, the members standing uncovered as it was read. It follows:

"The King knows that the house of commons shares in the profound and deep sorrow which has befallen his majesty by the death of his majesty's father, the late king, and that the house entertains a true sense of the loss which his majesty and the nation have sustained in this mournful event.

"King Edward's care for the welfare of the people and his skilful and prudent guidance of affairs, his unwearied devotion to public duty during an illustrious reign, will long be held in honor by his subjects at home and beyond the seas."

Unanimous Address of Sympathy. Upon a motion by Premier Asquith seconded by A. J. Balfour, leader of the opposition, the house of commons adopted unanimously an address to be presented to King George, in which he is assured of the heartfelt sympathy of the lower chamber in his grievous affliction, and in which also were expressed the congratulations of the house upon his accession. The address proceeds:

"We will ever remember with grateful affection the zeal and success with which our late sovereign labored to consolidate the peace and concord of the world, to aid every merciful endeavor for the alleviation of human suffering, and to unite in justice and freedom all the races and classes of his subjects with his imperial throne.

"We beg to offer your majesty our loyal congratulations upon your auspicious accession, and we assure your majesty of our devotion to his royal person and our sure conviction that his reign will, under the favor of divine providence, be distinguished by unswerving efforts to promote the virtue and contentment of the realm and to guard the rights and liberties of his majesty's faithful people."

Speaking on the motion Mr. Asquith referred to the "reign of the great king suddenly taken from us" as years crowded with moving events throughout the empire. He continued:

"In our relations with foreign countries they have been years of growing friendships and new understandings, strong and sure safeguards of the peace of mankind.

"Within the empire the sense of interdependence, the consciousness of common interests and common risks and of the ever tightening bonds of cooperative unity has been developed as never before."

"Part of Dignity and Authority." "Here at home, and by way of contrast, controversial issues of the gravest kind, have ripened with rapid maturity. In all of these multifarious manifestations of our national and imperial life, history will assign a part of particular dignity and authority to the great ruler whom we have lost."

"In external affairs his powerful personal influence was direct and steadily and ceaselessly toward avoiding not only wars, but the causes and pretext of wars, and the well-earned title by which he will always be remembered, the peace-maker of the world."

The premier then moved an expression of the house's condolence to the queen mother, Alexandra, on the irreparable loss which she has sustained, and assuring her that the house of commons and the nation would ever preserve toward her sentiments of unalterable reverence and affection.

While he was speaking Mr. Asquith was obviously deeply affected. When he expressed the sympathy which the house felt for the queen mother he all but broke down.

Speaking along similar lines in the house of lords, the earl of Crewe, as well as overcame with emotion, and concluded his remarks only with difficulty.

SOUTH BERWICK ACADEMY 7—PORTSMOUTH 5

The baseball team of the Portsmouth high school were defeated by the strong South Berwick Academy team at South Berwick, on Wednesday afternoon, by a score of 7 to 5. It was a very good game and the local boys played a fine game and did well to keep the Academy team down. W. Brackett pitched a good game for the locals, and led his team at the bat with two singles and a double.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

The Board of Trade held a meeting on Wednesday evening and there was a large attendance. There was only routine business, which was followed by refreshments.

HOME THE PLACE TO SPEND MONEY

If You Are Seeking Greatest Gain,

DO NOT SEND IT TO THE CITY.

Whence It Comes Back Ne'er Again. Help Your Neighbor in His Striving. Boost Your Town and His Your Best. Life Will Take on Brighter Colors, Living Have a Higher Zest.

If Jim Billson is your neighbor and a good, hardworking man; if he does his best to live here on an honest, upright plan; if his wife and yours are friendly and his kids play with your boys, don't you think you ought to help him through the world's turmoil and noise?

If he's tired it up to serve you with the goods that you require; if his prices are but fair ones and are not a penny higher than the prices in the city, do you think it's fair to him, to be sending out of town for goods instead of helping Jim?

Don't you know the trade that stays here is the thing that helps the town, pays the taxes and expenses, keeps the cost of living down? Think it over, turn it over in your own fair reasoning mind, and if tempted to trade elsewhere, why, just put the thought behind!

Help the town that you reside in. This is your place, your town. This big city doesn't need you but as much as does your own. Join the boosters' club and help us build it up and make it grow. All it needs is lots of workers who will give it half a snow.

Keep your cash circulating where it brings the best return—that's unless you have enough of it to throw away or burn, for the dollar in the home town is the one that does the work, while the one that's sent away from there is nothing but a shunt.

Yes, the catalogue's enticing that mail order houses send, but you'll find there's nothing really cheap about it in the end. The closer that the dollar sticks the farther will it go. Just try spending it at home and give your merchant friend a show.

Every bit you help your neighbor takes the burden off your back, for it helps him to carry his kind, when your affairs are slack. It's a mighty sorry business saying, "buddy" by mail to the man who can't repay you with a smile for every sale.

When you're tempted by the bargain that are spread out to your view, and it seems so very easy "just to send your order," through, "take a minute to consider if your neighbor cannot sell the goods or just as good ones for a price that suits as well.

"Boosters' club" are all the "go" now in the town, throughout the land, and there's prize in the offering for the willing, working man. Why there's nothing half so fitting, half so helpful or so strong, as the hand of him who's willing to assist his town along!

CHARLES N. LORIE.

ARE YOU A "CIVICIDE"?

Or Do You Work For the Growth and Development of Your Home Town?

"Close on the heels of 'civicidism,' the word suggested by a correspondent of a New York paper to express the idea of civic pride, enthusiasm for one's home town, comes 'civildism,' a word coined by Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo.

Mayor Whitlock used the word to express the idea a citizen bears or should bear to his city, just as patriots means the love a man bears for his country or fatherland. Mayor Whitlock's neo-Latinism is derived from the Latin word 'civitas,' which means a citizen, or 'civitas,' meaning citizenship.

In his message to the city council in which the word 'civildism' occurred Toledo's chief magistrate used another word of his own manufacture. It was 'civildism,' by which term he characterized those persons who for selfish motives obstruct public works and thereby hinder the growth and development of a city.

JUST READ 'EM OVER.

A Couple of Queries and Answers of Interest to Many People.

Q. When you buy in your home town the goods you need, whom do you help? A. Yourself, and your neighbor—yourself because part of the money spent at home is likely to find its way back into your own pocket, your neighbor because he has to rely upon home trade for a livelihood for himself and his family.

Q. When you send your money to the city, to the mail order houses, whom do you benefit and whom do you harm? A. You benefit a man who cares only for your money and nothing about yourself. You are likely to harm yourself because you have to take the word of a stranger that the goods which he will send you are the same as those he advertises.

Uniformity in Sidewalks. In some towns the excellent custom is practiced of securing uniformity of sidewalks by having all the work of repairing old and laying new walks done under the supervision of a sidewalk committee.

A THRIVING INDUSTRY

Kyanizing Plant Has a Year's Work Now Ahead of It

Very few people ever give a thought to the work furnished to a small crew of men at the kyanizing works on Noble's Island, owned and operated by Otis Allen and son of Lowell, Mass., where lumber is put through the tanks of corrosive sublimate for all parts of the country.
A visit of a Herald man to the establishment today found many thousands of feet of lumber on hand, waiting to go through the process, and many carloads to come along daily.
Foreman Melutosh informed the reporter that the firm had a year's steady work ahead of it.

First Draft of the Wisconsin's Men to Go Saturday

Making Soundings for Lines from the Heating Plant

Gone Back to Panama
Frank Cornish, a former machinist in the steam engineering, who has been passing a furlough in this city for the past month, returned on Wednesday to his duties on the Isthmus of Panama.

Will Go on Saturday

The draft of one hundred of the crew of the U. S. S. Wisconsin, which was held up on Monday last, will leave on Saturday for Norfolk for the U. S. S. Delaware. Other drafts will follow until the crew of 499 are reduced to 127, besides the officers who will be assigned to the ship.

Taking Soundings for the Work

Soundings are being made by the force from the drafting room of the yards and docks on every part of the reservation where the new heating lines are being laid, in connection with those now running from the power lighting and heating plant.

Will Cover Up the Machinery

The electrical apparatus, used to operate the big shears will shortly be housed in, the plans for which are now being made ready by the department of yards and docks.

Gone Into the Pig Business

One of the force at the central power plant recently went into the pig business and made a purchase of several small porkers. The fact that he requested a tip on how to care for the young swine caused all his friends at the plant to offer suggestions, some advising him to scrub and curry comb his stock every day. He is afraid he will be up night and day if he follows out the advice of his associates.

Two Events at Brooklyn

The new battleship Michigan sailed from Brooklyn navy yard on Wednesday afternoon for the speed tests off Rockland. She has 36 officers and 800 men.

The new dreadnought, the Florida, was launched at Brooklyn navy yard this forenoon. That reminds Portsmouth yard workmen that a job of shipbuilding would be acceptable here.

Inspection Board to Look Over Yard

The official inspection board will shortly visit this station and view the station and improvements now under way.

Plans Come Back for Barracks Work

The plans for the remodeling of the junior officers' quarters at the marine barracks, have been returned from the quartermaster's department at Washington, and are now in the hands of the department of the yards and docks. Following some changes ordered in the same, the bids for the work will be issued.

Gets Pay Increase

Aaron Hubbard Brackett for the past seventeen years a faithful messenger in the yards and docks, is getting the glad hand today from the force in that department, as a result of a substantial increase of pay that certainly is well deserved on his part.

Going to Sell Some Junk

Preparations are being made for the annual sale of condemned material at the yard which will probably take place in July.

When Melbourne Was Scared.

Melbourne has never seen any real fighting, but it has had several scares. Its people for a long time cherished the delusion that the Russians had designs upon their city. Twice Russian admirals dropped in there casually, took soundings and landed observation parties. Once the citizens were aroused from their beds in the small hours of the morning by cannon booming and rocket firing down the bay. "The Russians at last!" was the general cry. But it was only a too joyous British captain who had made a record passage from London.

OVERFATNESS CONDEMNED

Fat, or even fattish, women readers who want to be in the mode this year must understand that the demand is for lines, not curves, and govern themselves accordingly.

That means OFF with the fat. It has become a duty. Many are trying exercise or dieting; but it is certain they will find these methods too slow and unreliable. The cheapest and safest way to get in form for the Dietreine mode is by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. Any druggist (or the Marmola Co., 978 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) will give you a large sized case of these elegant little fat reducers, containing a good, generous supply, for seventy-five cents, and even this quantity should be enough to make a decided impression on your excess fat. Many have lost as much as a pound a day.

These Marmola Prescription Tablets may be used with impunity and likewise perfect confidence, for, being made strictly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription, they are, of course, quite harmless. They are rather beneficial than otherwise, in fact, never disturbing the stomach or causing a wrinkling of the flesh.

FIRE ALARM BOX FOR THE HOSPITAL

The board of engineers and committee on fire department have under consideration the putting in of a private fire alarm box at the Cottage Hospital.

This is certainly a good idea and many wonder why such a move was not made long before now. The nearest stations to this institution are boxes No. 27 at Elwyn street and Lincoln avenue and No. 34 on the corner of South street and Sagamore avenue.

Should a fire start in the hospital, that would necessitate a general alarm, and if the sick confined there would have to be moved, it would take considerable time getting to either of these boxes to pull in the alarm. This delay would be especially bad for the patients.

A box located in the building would cause prompt response, not only from the fire department, but summon help that certainly would be needed in caring for the inmates.

Greatest Cavalry Fight.

The most tremendous cavalry fight, perhaps, that the world has ever seen took place at Doryleum, Syria, during the first of the crusades between the mailed chivalry of Christian Europe and the Saracens. The cavalry of the crusaders numbered 110,000, while that of the Saracens reached the prodigious figure of 300,000. Completely surprised by the enemy, the Christians recovered themselves and won the day. It is said that 50,000 of the Turkish horse were left dead upon the field.—New York American.
